Market Outlook

The reporting season provided its usual plethora of news flow during February. Overall, results were in line with expectations although remain mixed at a sector level. Resources modestly exceeded forecasts reflecting the strength in commodity prices whilst variability in demand across the various segments of the economy continued to provide much varied outcomes for industrial sectors. Concerns remained around ongoing unrest in the Middle East, with this reflected in higher oil and gold prices as well as periodic profit taking by equity investors. We have seen similar such geo political concerns over the past 12-18 months, the majority of which have in hindsight provided buying opportunities for an equity market which remains under long term valuations and which continues to be supported by broadly improving economic fundamentals.

Our constant program of company contact is integral to our objective of minimising negative surprises during reporting season and we were once again fairly pleased with the results of the majority of our investee companies. This helped provide our investors with another strong month of out-performance. Breville Group, McMillan Shakespeare and Forge Group were particular stand outs. We also made contact with many companies of potential interest and have an extensive visitation program mapped out for the next few months to ensure a strong supply of new investment candidates.
