

Market Review

- The euro zone's debt crisis rattled Europe's banking system and threatened to derail the region's fragile economic recovery. Meanwhile, the sustainability of China's pace of growth was called into question as authorities attempted to tap the brakes on the economy and curb speculation in real estate.
- Commodity prices dropped as investors appeared to reassess global demand.
- Stocks were sold off in North America as investors fled to the safety of government securities. While US economic data pointed to a recovery firmly taking hold, investors grew concerned that global events could hamper US companies and attenuate domestic growth.
- With the US dollar rising and the strength of global demand in question, commodity prices fell.
- The Financials sector dropped. The New York State Attorney General began investigating eight banks with regard to the information they supplied rating agencies on mortgage securities during the housing bubble. Stocks in sectors considered defensive - Utilities, Consumer Staples and Telecommunication Services, all rose.

- Canada's GDP grew during the first quarter at the fastest pace in a decade. With inflation remaining within the target range, the GDP surge all but assured that the central bank would raise interest rates for the first time in nearly three years at its June meeting.
- European stocks declined as the debt crisis spread from Greece to other countries, most notably Spain, despite the European Union and International Monetary Fund agreeing to provide a rescue package worth nearly US$1 trillion. The increasing debt worries overshadowed mostly positive economic and corporate data.
- The EU bailout package initially provided a respite for equity markets, but stocks resumed their sell-off amid renewed fears about other European countries' debt and banks' exposure to it.
- Governments in Spain, Portugal and Italy all approved sharp budget cuts in an effort to reduce their deficits, but there were worries over their effects on their economies.
- Exports continued to drive the nascent Japanese economic recovery, exceeding 40% (in USD terms) in year-on-year terms for the fourth consecutive month in April. However, GDP rose less than expected as consumer spending remained sluggish.
